VOLUME-II ISSUE-III

From the Desk of Principal

No matter how hard the situation is, we can always begin again. We together are ready to take up the challenges to discover new paths of success and accomplishment.

Today, in this pandemic situation, where Covid-19 continues to affect the lives and livelihood of people appallingly, technology has become a blessing in disguise. It has opened up a world of opportunities for the online learning process. Students can access to a broader range of platforms for learning but in the glare of blended approach, we are drifting apart from our rich culture and heritage. It is important to keep our children connected to the genesis of our culture and tradition.

Unquestionably, We are technologically expanding our branches through a lot of newness and innovation but at the same time we must deepen our roots within our culture to preserve our legacy and cultural wealth. In addition to the intrinsic value, we Teachers, Students and Parents should commence practising a variety of ways for acceptance and preservance of our cultural heritage.

Mow, it's the time to create a dynamic reciprocal relationship between culture and technology where culture comprehends technology through the means of narratives and those narratives influence the future shape and purposes of times.
